A CRAZED WOMAN'S MURDERS.

SENDING THERE OF HER CHILDREN TO HEAVEN BY CUTTING THEIR THEOATS AS THEY SLEPT.

AS THRY SLEPT.

At 3 30 s.m. yesterday Jas. O'Connor, iving on the top floor of No. 42 Water avenue, Jersey City neights, ran out into the street crying murder and calling for an officer. Policeman Harris and several neighbors accompanied O'Connor to his rooms. On the kitchen floor they found a 2-year-old child with its threat cut. In a crib in the bedroom were two children, one 8 snl one 4 years old, with their throats cut. All three were dead. Mary O'Connor, the mother. their throats cut. All three were dead. Mary O'Connor, the mother, was standing by a table with a range in her hand. O'Connor told the officer incoherently that he had been sleeping on a mattress by the side of the crib and near the window. His wife and the 2 year-old baby slept in the bed at the other side of the room Two children, David, S years old, and Francis, 4 years old, occupied the crib. Two elder children elept in another room. About 3.20 o'clock, O'Connor was awakened by hearing one of the children cry, and suppos-ing it wanted a drink of water, went out into the kitchen to get it. On his way back he stumbled over his murdered 2 year old baby, and runming to the other room found the two other children dead in the crib. Then he ran out into the street cry-ing murder. Mrs. O'Connor was ar rested, and County Physician Con-verse was telegraphed for. —He tried to determine the woman's mental determine the woman's mental oudition. She gave coherent and prompt answers to all his questions, but it was not until she was being removed to the county juil, after an examination in the police court, that she seemed to realize what she had done. Dr. Converse asked her where her children were, and she promptly answer-d: "They are dead, I killed them with a rann." She said the baby had been sick and she had no means to provide for it. She betself had been suffering a long time from malaris, and had had fre-quent bradaches. When she was arraigned in court later she was so week and nervous from illness and excitement that she was unable to walk without assistance. A tormal complaint of murder was made against her by Police Captain McKaig. She confessed indifferently that she had killed her hree chil dren. "Why did you kill them?" asked Judge Peloubet. "Because I wanted to send them o beaven.

"Did you ever think of killing on below?"
"No, sir." At this point Captain McKaig knife, which had been found con-cealed under the mattress on which the woman's husband slept. Justice Peloubet asked the prisoner what she had intended to do with the knife, and why she had concealed it. "I went first and got the knife," he answered unbestistingly, "bu

I was afraid it was not sharp enough, so I then hid it and went and got the razor." It was locked in a desk in the bed-room, and the key was hang-ing on a nail in the kitchen.

"You must have gone very quietly about it," remarked the judge.

"Indeed I did. I did it very quietly

"Madame, do you realize that you have committed murder?" "I do.". "Are you sorry for what you have
